Contemporary Problems

Mr. Kenneth Tucker, Mr. Lewis Parker, Mr. Thomas Johnson, Jr., and Mr. George Washington contributed to this section.

Mr. Tucker, in elucidating the problems, mentioned the different approaches of the various political parties. He explained that the majority party usually has the final say on important issues, while the minority party can only criticize the decisions made by the majority.

Mr. Johnson discussed the role of the President in resolving these issues. He stated that the President has the power to veto laws passed by Congress, and he can also use executive orders to influence policy.

Mr. Washington offered his perspective on the need for a balanced budget. He argued that government overspending can lead to inflation and economic instability.

Mr. Parker concluded by emphasizing the importance of public opinion in shaping political decisions. He suggested that citizens should be more involved in the political process to ensure that their voices are heard.

Dear Editor

I am very concerned about the direction our school is taking. We have been told by administrators that this is a time of growth and change, but I believe that change is not always for the better. As a member of the student body, I have observed some actions that I believe are detrimental to the well-being of our community.

In particular, I am troubled by the recent decision to cut funding for the arts program. I believe that the arts are essential to a well-rounded education and that they should be supported. I urge the administration to reconsider this decision.

I also believe that there is a lack of transparency in the decision-making process. I think that students and parents should have a greater voice in the direction of the school. I believe that this would lead to better decision-making and greater accountability.

I hope that you will consider my concerns and take them into account when making future decisions. Thank you for your time.

Sincerely,

Why Are They Afraid?

A serious problem exists in the United States today which could easily be corrected.

In this country in their twentieth, nineteenth and eighteenth years, who otherwise function as adults under the laws of our country in terms of finances, we have the right to have a tremendous annual income for the least, have the right to have a home and a family in this country, to make our own mistakes, and to be afraid to act on this frightening knowledge.

Lester Rand, head of the American Jewish Committee, will speak to more than three million people in 30 million homes and families in this country about his proposition: to raise the minimum voting age to 21.

Now if these young Americans from 14 to 17 years old are able to make their own mistakes, to learn by their errors, and to die for it? It is a salient question, and it is a question which most of the students in this country are not even aware of.

This is a serious problem which exists in our country today.

A Suggestion for Change

Simple accident of age is the role or only a minor role in the determination of our students. Grades, per se, play no role or only a minor role in the determination of our students.

In conclusion, we must work in the world, in the world of politics, in the world of economics, and in the world of thought. It seems obvious that political and economic issues are that we are able to make our own mistakes, to learn by our errors, and to die for it? It is a salient question, and it is a question which most of the students in this country are not even aware of.

Why Are They Afraid?

A serious problem exists in the United States today which could seriously be corrected. Twelve percent of all equipment in the country is either more than ten years old or under repair, and many of these pieces of equipment are supposed to be replaced in over twenty years. As a result, the country's economy is threatened, and the quality of life for many Americans is reduced.

A Suggestion for Change

In recent years, and particularly in the last few years, there has been a rather strong movement for change in our society. The younger generation has begun to realize that the old ways of doing things are no longer adequate, and they are demanding changes in the way society is organized. It is time for us to listen to them and make the necessary changes.

The students were asked to participate in the survey. Of the 18 students interviewed, 12 said yes, 6 said no, and 0 said maybe. The results indicate that the students are mostly in favor of arms sales to Israel.

The Egyptians have only $2.5 billion this year. The U.S. government has offered to sell them another $5 billion worth of Israeli goods. The Egyptians have rejected the offer, stating, "We do not want American soldiers defending our democracy in the Middle East.

In order to fully understand the requirements of the course, the students were asked to complete a survey. The survey was divided into four sections: the instructor's background, the course objectives, the grading system, and the trip to Israel. The survey was administered to the students electronically.

In the course, the students are divided into groups of four or five. Each group is responsible for preparing a presentation on a specific topic related to the course objectives. The presentations will be evaluated based on their content, organization, and delivery. The presentations will be graded on a scale of 0 to 100, with 100 being the highest possible score. The final grade for each student will be determined by averaging the scores of all the presentations.

The grading system is designed to assess the students' understanding of the course material and their ability to apply it in real-world situations. The grading system includes the following elements:

- Participation: 20% (based on active participation in class discussions and presentations)
- Homework: 30% (based on the quality and completeness of the homework assignments)
- Midterm Exam: 25% (based on the student's performance on the midterm exam)
- Final Exam: 25% (based on the student's performance on the final exam)

The final grade will be determined by averaging the scores of all the elements. The grading system is designed to provide a comprehensive assessment of the students' performance in the course.
