DOES THE SHOE FIT?
YOU’LL NEVER KNOW UNLESS YOU TRY IT ON

Have you ever dreamed of having your byline in a newspaper? Do you write, but just don’t know who would print your work?

Read in COMM 1307 Printing for the Mass Market College of the Mainland’s beginner journalism course and become a part of one of our award-winning campus newspapers, InterCOM.

Whichever you’re a journalist major, or just wish to adorn your writing skills, becoming a part of InterCOM offers exposure in an array of articles, including straight news, columns, feature stories, essays, political opinions, and personality sketches.

As an InterCOM staffer you get hands-on experience in the construction of a newspaper, starting from the skeletal stages of coming up with story ideas to producing the final product.

Writing who already have some experience may enroll in COMM 2305 Copy Editing and Production with the instructor’s approval.

Enrollment in either course must be accompanied with the permission of the instructor.

Commence in either course at Thursday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to 10:50 a.m.

The newspaper will be a way to meet people of different races and professions.

COM trains greyhound racetrack tellers

By NATHAN W. WHEELER

Huntingdon High School and College of the Mainland’s Racetrack Training Academy is a part of the College of the Mainland’s larger mission of the community. The training academy was started in 1992 and is costing the students $25 for the first week of training.

The group they are recruiting will be hired at the end of the training program. The tellers will be hired at the Greyhound Park in La Marque, Texas. All training is offered by Gulf Greyhound Park, a racetrack located around the complex will be run by “Teller Training.”

The training is held in two sessions. The first session is held from 10 a.m. until 10:50 a.m. and will be offered at the student’s convenience. COMM 2305 meets Mondays through Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 12:20 p.m.

The top three students will then be the ones who get jobs in the Greyhound Park.

Going back to school in fast-moving world

Melene Thompson

Melene Thompson: There are so many different stories being told. Sometimes it's hard to keep up... But when you think about it, it's not just the school year... It's the whole world. School, home, work. It's all happening at the same time. It's like being in a fast-moving world.

Gulf Greyhound Park off like a shot on Nov. 10

SAB sets fall activities, invites students to join
by JAMES MILLION

Our hound's going: Are you looking for something to get involved with on campus? The Student Activities Board (SAB) is currently asking for members for their upcoming activities. If you're interested in helping plan events for the fall semester, SAB is inviting everyone on campus to join their team. Members will also be given the opportunity to plan events for next year.

SAB meets every Thursday at 12:30, and in order to be a member, you must be a current student at COM. If you're interested in joining, you can contact SAB at their meeting times or at their booth located in the Student Center.

Arts commission awards COM gallery a grant
by JAMES MILLION

The Arts Commission awarded the COM Fine Arts Gallery a grant for the 1992-1993 academic year. The grant is intended to support the gallery's efforts in bringing artists to campus and presenting their work. The gallery is planning to present several exhibitions and events throughout the year, including a series of lectures and workshops by visiting artists. The gallery is also planning to host a series of films and concerts to complement the exhibitions.

by JAMES MILLION

As part of its commitment to bringing culture and learning to campus, COM has scheduled a series of speakers for the fall semester. The forum will feature a variety of topics, including history, science, and art. Speakers will include scholars, artists, and other experts in their fields. The forum will be held in the University Center and is open to the public.

Dorm life totally unlike commuting
by JAMES MILLION

Most students who commute to college have to make the transition from living at home to living on campus. Although some students may find the change difficult, others feel that it's a welcome change.

Commuting students have to worry about transportation, parking, and finding a place to eat. On campus, students have access to a variety of resources, including a dining hall, a library, and a variety of recreational activities. Students also have the opportunity to get involved with student organizations and to make new friends.

'Made in the Shade'

By JANE CAMPBELL

Staff Writer

You will need both a trowel and a varnish when you walk through the Missouri Botanical Gardens this year. Botanists are happy to announce that they have added a new shade tree to their list of offerings. The tree, a new variety of oak, is the result of years of research and development by the Missouri Botanical Garden's staff of arborists. The tree was originally introduced to the United States from Europe, but has now been propagated successfully in St. Louis. The shade, which is expected to last for at least 50 years, will provide a welcome respite from the hot sun on those long summer days. The tree will be available for purchase at the Missouri Botanical Garden's nursery starting next spring. The cost will be $50 per tree, including installation. For more information, call the Missouri Botanical Garden at 314-577-8710.

SAB sets fall activities, invites students to join

To choose the new events, the SAB picks them based on student and teacher recommendations. To ensure that the activities are well-received, we take into account what other students have enjoyed in the past.

The gallery will also be featuring a special event for the upcoming year. Although activities for the fall semester have already been decided, we are always open to new ideas and suggestions. If you have any ideas for events you would like to see this fall, please let us know! We want to make sure everyone has a great time this semester!

Dorm life totally unlike commuting

By JOHN WALTER
Assistant Editor

Students who have never lived away from home have to make some radical adjustments to living on a college campus. You may be used to your family being just a short drive away, but now you are living on your own, in a dorm.

It's also time for the presidential election. Coming to College of the Mainland for the semester means more than just getting your education. It's also about shaping your political future. For the first time in history, COM is holding a presidential debate in the fall of 1992. The candidates will be discussing their platforms and policies, and you, the voters, will have the opportunity to ask them questions.

COM schedules fall speakers forum

College of the Mainland has a panel of at least five speakers for their first '92-93 season of speakers forum. The first speaker will be announced in the coming weeks.

The forum is a series of lectures and discussions that take place throughout the year. It is open to all students and faculty, and provides an opportunity to learn from and engage with experts in a variety of fields.

The forum is a great way to expand your knowledge and stay informed about the latest developments in your field of study. You'll have the chance to hear from experts and ask questions, which can be very helpful for your academic and professional growth.

We hope you will join us for our first forum event this fall. Stay tuned for more information!
It's just the acting vernacular - in the right place at the right time.

When Edie Eason of Texas City enrolled in the same acting class at College of the Arts program, she had no idea that it would lead to her being cast in a commercial.

"I was always interested in acting, but I never thought it was something I could do," Eason said. "When I heard about the class, I decided to give it a try."

Her acting career took off when she was cast in a commercial for Gulf Greyhound Park.

"I was so excited," Eason said. "It was a dream come true."

Eason is not alone in her success. Many other students at the College of the Arts have been cast in commercials as well.

"We have a lot of talented students here," said Mike West, the director of the College of the Arts. "They are working hard to make their dreams a reality."

The success of the students is due in part to the efforts of the instructors. "Our instructors are some of the best in the business," West said. "They are dedicated to helping our students reach their goals."

For Eason, the casting in the commercial was the beginning of a new career. "I'm so grateful for this opportunity," she said. "I can't wait to see what else I can do."

College of the Mainland Drama Theater opened our season with Thornton Wilder's "Our Town." The play ran through Nov. 7. "Our Town" is a realistic view of the everyday life of a small town in the rural U.S. in the early 1900s. The story follows the lives of the town's inhabitants over the course of six years. The play is a masterful piece of American literature and has become a classic of the American stage.

Although "Our Town" is set in a small town, it has a universal appeal and can be performed in any setting. The play is characterized by its simplicity and honesty, and its themes of love, loss, and the inevitability of death. The production at College of the Mainland was directed by John Walker, and the set design was by John Smith.

"Our Town" is a must-see for anyone who loves great theater and appreciates the timeless beauty of American literature.
Columbus stinks, wait for 1492

by Jennifer Cundey

Christopher Columbus the discoverer is the bane of two annual celebrations here in Galveston. The fact that a man who was not the discoverer of the Americas could have his name associated with two annual traditions here in Galveston is both distasteful and embarrassing.

To the best of my knowledge, Columbus returned to Spain in 1493, 10 years before the birth of Jesus. He was thus of no help to the people of the Western Hemisphere, as they were not yet discovered or entitled to his name.

Our school district needs a name to be associated with each of the two events we celebrate here in Galveston. As it is now, no one really knows what we are celebrating. It just seems someone decided to tie Columbus to Halloween and have a celebration on the weekend following.

Halloween activities abound in area

Halloween, the sight of ghouls, goblins and things that go bump in the night has taken hold of the children of the island. The traditional candy-spoiling and carving of pumpkins has taken hold of the children of the island.

The Children's Hospital, 2300 St. James St., Galveston, allows for the children to register and take their Halloween candy to the patients of the hospital.

The hospital also has a party for the kids to enjoy.

Christopher Columbus the Discoverer is the focus of a new musical that will open at the Municipal Auditorium in Columbus this weekend. The show is a celebration of the 500th anniversary of his arrival in America.

The musical, "Columbus," is written and directed by John Brody, who also wrote the music. The book, sets and costumes are by William Cartwright, and the cast includes several Columbus residents.

The show opens tonight at 8 p.m. and runs through Sunday at 7:30 p.m. Matinees will be held Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m.

Halloween activities abound in area

Halloween, the night of ghosts, goblins and things that go bump in the night, is observed with enthusiasm by children and adults alike. From trick-or-treating to horror films, the holiday is a favorite among many.

This year, the city of Columbus is offering a variety of events to celebrate the occasion. The annual Halloween Parade will take place on October 31, starting at 6 p.m. in downtown Columbus. The parade features floats, costumed characters and music.

In addition to the parade, there will be a costume contest at the Columbus Recreation Center. Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes in various categories. The contest begins at 4 p.m.

Workshops ensure preservation of bay

Galveston Bay Studies help by teaching ecology to public

BY JUERG BIRNIE

Imagine a day when you can sit by the bay and watch the sun set over the water. The sounds of the waves lapping against the shore, the smell of the salt air, the feel of the breeze on your face. It's a moment to remember. Imagine the feeling of knowing that you are helping to protect the bay for future generations.

The Galveston Bay Foundation is a non-profit organization dedicated to preserving Galveston Bay. They offer workshops and programs to educate the public about the bay's ecology and how to protect it.

The foundation also offers a program called "Bay Buddy," which pairs children with a bay volunteer to learn about the bay. The program is designed to teach children about the importance of conservation and the need to protect the bay.

Come celebrate and learn about Galveston Bay at the foundation's annual fall festival. The event will feature music, food, and games for all ages. It's a great opportunity to get involved and make a difference.

Meet '92 presidential candidates
Find out where Bush and Clinton stand on the issues

By JENNIFER CANSLER

Lately, it seems that the presidential hopefuls have been feverishly calling for a "clean slate" at all levels of government and have promised "change" to the American people. Ohio Governor James "Jim" Rhodes has been running a campaign that includes a call for the decriminalization of marijuana, a "dirty bomb" for cockroaches as a result of a local outbreak, and a "hot sex" on the part of women. Despite these controversial issues, the candidates have remained silent on the issue of handgun purchases.

On the other hand, President George Bush and former Arkansas Governor Bill Clinton have been more focused on domestic issues. Bush has been promoting his plan to provide personal savings accounts to people who have been unemployed for a year, and Clinton has been presenting his proposal to provide loans to first-time home buyers and higher taxes for the wealthy.

But what does this all mean? The presidential candidates have been stumping around the country, trying to win the support of the American people. They have been visiting factories, hospitals, and schools, and have been making speeches on the issues of the day. But what will happen if one of them is elected? Will the country be any different?

As the election day draws near, it is important for the American people to understand where the presidential candidates stand on the issues. By reading this article, you can learn more about the candidates and their positions, and decide for yourself whom you would like to see in the White House next year.

Comprehensive information on the presidential candidates can be found in the November issue of InterCOM.

New World colonizers predators

By DAVE KENNEDY

As the U.S. prepares to celebrate the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' arrival at what he believed was the East Indies, it's worth remembering that Columbus was a predator of the New World.

The U.S. is the product of a process of exploration and conquest unparalleled in human history. The New World colonizers, as they were called, were not only predators of the New World, but also of the Old World.

Two business scholarships awarded

By NELSON THOMPSON

The Division of Social Science, the Grafton Fund, has announced the winners of two scholarships for the past 500 years. When I told my mom that it was going to be heavily competitive, she was shocked. I said, "Yes, the Indians didn't have a chance." She replied, "They were powerful nations, the sort of people who could have made a strong argument for their survival." I felt she was right, but I was also concerned about the impact of the European colonizers on the indigenous populations.

Fall SAB Blood Drive sets record with 170 donors

By JORDAN PETERS

The fall SAB Blood Drive was held on October 18th and 19th at the University Center. The drive was coordinated by the Interfraternity Council and was open to all members of the SAB community.

The drive was a huge success, with over 170 donors attending. Students and faculty members alike lined up to donate blood, making it one of the largest blood drives in SAB history. The drive was well-organized, and the atmosphere was positive.

The drive was conducted by the American Red Cross, and all donors received a free t-shirt as a thank you for their generosity.

Drinking or driving: the choice is yours

By CHRIS PETERS

Drinking and driving is a serious issue that affects many lives every year. It is important to be aware of the dangers of drinking and driving and to make the choice to drive sober.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, there were 34,164 alcohol-related traffic deaths in 2016. These deaths were the result of drinking and driving, and they could have been prevented.

It is important to remember that drinking and driving is not only dangerous but also illegal. The penalties for drinking and driving can be severe, and they include fines, license suspension, and even imprisonment.

The best way to avoid drinking and driving is to plan ahead. If you plan on drinking, make plans to have a designated driver or to use public transportation. This will ensure that you arrive home safely and without any accidents.

In conclusion, drinking and driving is a serious issue that affects many lives every year. It is important to be aware of the dangers of drinking and driving and to make the choice to drive sober. By planning ahead and being responsible, we can help prevent accidents and save lives.

As the May 1992 Employee Recognition Banquet came to a close, President L. Stanley greeted all attendees with his usual humor.

"It was a true honor to address you all," Stanley said, "and I hope you enjoyed the evening as much as we enjoyed having you here with us."

The event was held in the Student Center on the evening of May 7, and featured speeches by COM President L. Stanley, Vice President for Academic Affairs Dr. Robert T. Fisher, and other members of the COM administration.

"The purpose of tonight's banquet," Stanley said, "is to recognize the hard work and dedication of our employees. Because of their efforts, COM continues to grow and thrive.

"As a result of their dedication, we are able to provide quality education to our students," Stanley added. "We are grateful for all that they do, and tonight we want to express our appreciation.

"I want to thank each and every employee here tonight," Stanley concluded. "Your hard work is what makes COM what it is today. Thank you for all that you do."

Talent, education, experience equal Dotti Jones

By Jennifer Condon

The second floor was bustling with activity as Dotti Jones opened the door to the Child Development Lab. She greeted the researchers with a warm smile and introduced them to the latest batch of participants. Jones, a professor at the University of New York, has been studying childcare for over a decade, and her research has earned her a reputation as one of the leading experts in the field. She was happy to share her knowledge with the visiting scholars.

The researchers, from various universities across the country, were impressed by Jones' work. They had come to learn from her and to contribute to the field of early childhood education. They were all aware of the importance of early learning and the impact it has on a child's development.

Jones began her presentation by discussing the benefits of early intervention programs. She shared her research findings, which showed a significant correlation between early childhood education and later academic success. She emphasized the importance of providing high-quality early childhood education to all children, regardless of their background.

The researchers took notes as Jones spoke, eager to apply her findings to their own work. They were grateful for this opportunity to learn from Jones and to collaborate with other experts in the field.

After the presentation, the researchers had the chance to ask questions and to discuss their own work. They were all impressed by the depth of Jones' knowledge and the passion she brought to her research.

Jones ended her presentation by thanking the researchers for their time and for their interest in her work. She encouraged them to continue their research and to contribute to the field of early childhood education.

The researchers left the Child Development Lab with a renewed sense of purpose and a deep appreciation for the work of Dotti Jones.

Fall SAB Blood Drive sets record with 170 donors

By JORDI PETERS

The Fall SAB Blood Drive was a huge success, with 170 donors giving blood despite the challenges of the pandemic. The drive was held on October 15th, 2021, and it was a testament to the community's dedication to helping others.

The drive was held at the University of New York and was organized by the Student Activities Board. The goal was to collect 150 units of blood, but the community exceeded that goal by 20 units.

The drive was well-attended, with donors of all ages and backgrounds coming together to support the cause. The atmosphere was positive and upbeat, with music playing in the background and volunteers offering refreshments.

The drive was made possible by the hard work of the volunteers who were responsible for setting up the hospital tents, recruiting donors, and collecting blood.

The success of the Fall SAB Blood Drive was a result of the community's commitment to helping others. It was a reminder of the importance of giving back and of coming together in times of need.

Bass hears out students at forum

By ROB KUTZEL

Dr. Thomas Bass, the College of the Midwest's Dean of Athletics and Student Development, held a forum in the Great Hall to address concerns raised by students. Bass listened attentively as students expressed their concerns, which ranged from issues of social justice to student safety.

Bass assured the students that the college is committed to addressing their concerns. He said that the college is working with local authorities to ensure the safety of students and that the college is taking steps to create a more inclusive and equitable campus environment.

Bass also emphasized the importance of student input in the decision-making process. He said that the college is committed to listening to student voices and to incorporating their ideas into the decision-making process.

Drinking or driving: the choice is yours

By STEPHEN KINDAL

The choice to drink and drive is a personal one, but it's also a decision that has serious consequences for others. Every day, lives are lost and others suffer injuries due to drunk driving.

It's important to be aware of the risks associated with drinking and driving. Alcohol and drugs can impair judgment and reaction time, making it difficult to drive safely.

If you choose to drink, it's important to make arrangements to get home safely. Whether it's calling a taxi or using public transportation, there are options available to keep yourself and others safe.

Remember, the choice to drink and drive is not an option. Make the responsible choice and choose not to drive if you've been drinking.

COM Senate discusses ban on food, drinks

By OLIVER BARTLETT

The Student Senate at COM discussed the issue of banning food and drinks on campus. The debate centered around the benefits and drawbacks of such a policy.

The issue of banning food and drinks on campus has been a topic of discussion for some time. Some students believe that it is a necessary measure to maintain a clean and healthy environment on campus. Others believe that it is an infringement on their personal freedom.

The Senate voted to ban food and drinks on campus, with a majority of the members in favor of the proposal. The ban will go into effect at the beginning of the next semester.

Stoker’s Dracula: love, not horror story

By HUNTER MEYER
Staff Reporter

The 1967 Dracula movie, directed by Roman Polanski, is often remembered for its graphic violence and sexual depictions. However, the film's director, John Badham, recently stated that the film was actually meant to be a romantic drama.

Badham explained that the film was intended to explore the themes of love and possession, rather than horror. He said that the film's success was due to its ability to appeal to both horror and romance fans.

The film's lead actors, Christopher Walken and Catherine Deneuve, also commented on the film's mix of genres.

"It was a very unusual film," Walken said. "I think people were drawn to it because it was something different." Deneuve agreed, saying, "I think it was a real turning point in my career."
Bass hears students' complaints
By CHRIST PETERS

Jenne Spann, room 311, said that three students were heated about a system that was causing a lot of problems for them. The system in question is the College Hour, a new system for distributing and retrieving books and supplies. Spann and her roommates were tasked with monitoring the system, and they have been plagued by problems.

They have found that the system is not working as it should. Books are missing, supplies are not available, and students are having difficulty checking in and out of the system. Spann said, "We have been trying to get this system to work for weeks, but it just doesn't seem to be working."

The system was developed by the Registrar's Office and is being overseen by the College Administration. The system is designed to streamline the process of borrowing and returning materials, but it has not been without its problems.

The students have been told that the system is still being tested and that they should expect some glitches. However, they believe that the system is not ready for prime time yet.

Spann and her roommates have been trying to fix the system themselves, but they have not been successful. They have reached out to the administration for help, but they have not received any response.

They are now asking for the administration to take action and fix the system. They have been told that the administration is aware of the problems and that they will be looking into the matter. However, they are not sure if anything will be done to fix the system.

The students are concerned about the impact that the system is having on their learning experience. They believe that the system is not working as it should and that it is causing them a lot of stress.

They are calling for the administration to take action and fix the system. They believe that the administration has a responsibility to ensure that the students have a positive learning experience and that they should take steps to fix the system immediately.
Fond family memories

My parents both have memories of Christmas. My father remembered the first time he saw the three wisemen bring gifts to Jesus in the manger. He was only five years old when his parents took him to see the nativity scene. As he watched the tiny figures of the wise men, he realized how much he loved Christmas. He remembers that year as one of the happiest of his life, and he still associates Christmas with joy and happiness. My mother, on the other hand, has a different memory. She remembers the first Christmas when she and her family were together for the holidays. She was only eight years old at the time, but she remembers the warmth and love that filled the home. She remembers the special meal they had together and the presents that were exchanged. These memories have stayed with her throughout her life, and she still associates Christmas with family and love.

By Jennifer Currie

Frozen-pipe morning

The second real Christmas memory I have is of the frozen pipes. That must have been a hard winter. The pipes were frozen and the water was not flowing, so we had to go to the frozen water fountain and use that for the Christmas dinner. I was eight years old then, and my parents must have been very stressed about the situation. We had to fill the water jugs and use them for the dinner, and I remember how we all helped each other out. It was a very different Christmas, but we still had fun and made the most of the situation. I remember how we decorated the house with Christmas lights and made snowmen out of the frozen water. It was a very memorable Christmas, and I will always remember the freezing pipes.

By Jennifer Currie

Christmas too commercialized

Mary has a memory of Christmas that is very different from mine. She remembers the first time she received a gift from Santa Claus. It was a very happy Christmas for her, and she remembers how she was so excited to open the gift. She still remembers the feeling of joy and happiness that she experienced that day. But she also remembers how commercialized Christmas has become. She says that the true meaning of Christmas has been lost in the commercialization of the holiday. She says that the focus is now on the gifts and the materialistic aspects of the holiday, and not on the true meaning of the season. She says that she wishes that Christmas could be more about the spirit of joy and love, and less about the materialistic aspects.

By Jennifer Currie

Creative energy flows in COM Art Association

The last Christmas memory I have is of the COM Art Association. I remember how we used to create art projects and work on the Christmas decorations together. We would all sit around the table and create art projects, and it was always a lot of fun. I remember how we would all get into the holiday spirit and work on the decorations together. It was a wonderful Christmas, and I will always remember the creativity and joy that we experienced during that time.

Registrar’s 17 years see major changes

by BETTY HARTLETT

Dr. John Johnston, dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences at the University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana, has been registrar for the past 17 years. The position of registrar has changed dramatically over the years, and Johnston has been instrumental in many of these changes. He has been involved in the creation of new majors, the development of online courses, and the expansion of the university’s international programs. Johnston, who will retire in June, has overseen the implementation of new technology, including the use of computers to process registration and billing. The registrar’s office has grown from a small staff of four to a team of over 100 people, with responsibilities ranging from scheduling classes to handling financial aid. Johnston credits the success of the registrar’s office to his team of dedicated employees and the support of the university administration. He says that the position of registrar is an important one, as it involves working with students, faculty, and staff to ensure the smooth operation of the university. "It’s a challenging job, but it’s rewarding to see the impact we have on the lives of our students," he said. "I’ve been fortunate to work with many outstanding people over the years, and I’m proud of the work we’ve done."

Have you ever thought what would you do if you were attacked? "How would you handle it?"

The world of self-defense is an active one. It is a world that requires an understanding of protection, with a layer of defense. This world is one that is constantly changing, as the needs of society demand. There are many types of defense manuals and techniques, but the most important is the ability to think and react quickly.

Registrar's 17 years see major changes

By DOROTHY BARRETT

Dr. Lisa Johnson, Long Beach Maritime Academy registrar and associate director of Administrative Services, has worked at the academy for 17 years - a period during which the college has experienced major changes.

"In 1975, when I started at the Maritime Academy, it was part of Long Beach City College," Johnson said. "It's amazing how it's changed over the past 17 years. We've had a lot of changes, new buildings and new programs."

Johnson's tenure has spanned a period of significant growth for the college, which has expanded its offerings and facilities over the years.

"We've grown from a small community college to a major university," Johnson said. "We've added new programs and increased our enrollment."

Johnson has been a part of the college's growth and development, from its early days to its current status as a major institution of higher education.

"I've been here through it all," Johnson said. "I've seen the college evolve from a small community college to a major university."

Bass hears students' complaints

By Chris Peters

The administration is planning to open a "room outlet" in the Student Center.

Students have expressed their displeasure with the administration's decision.

"It's a complete waste of space," said one student. "They could have used it for something more useful."

"I don't understand why they would do this," said another.

The room outlet will be a place where students can buy snacks and drinks.

"I don't see the point," said one student. "Why not just put a vending machine there?"

The administration has said that the room outlet will be a place where students can socialize and study.

"We're trying to create a more comfortable environment for students," said one administrator.

Some students have suggested that the administration consider using the space for something else.

"Why not use it for a study lounge or a quiet study area?" said one student.

The administration has said that the decision to open the room outlet was made after considering student feedback.

"We listened to what the students had to say," said the administrator.

However, some students have said that they feel their concerns were not taken seriously.

"I don't feel like they really care," said one student.

The administration has said that it is committed to improving the campus environment.

"We want to make the campus a more welcoming place for everyone," said the administrator.

Some students have said that they are looking forward to the room outlet's opening.

"I think it will be a good thing," said one student.

Others have expressed concerns about the potential impact on other areas of the campus.

"I'm worried about how this will affect other places," said one student.

The administration has said that it is confident that the room outlet will be a success.

"We're excited to see it open," said the administrator.

The room outlet is scheduled to open next month.

Dr. Bass: Compulsory courses should not be optional

Dr. Bass also expressed concern about the administration's decision to offer optional courses.

"I don't see how that makes sense," said Dr. Bass. "Compulsory courses are essential for students to succeed."

Some students have said that they appreciate the option to choose their own course load.

"I don't think it's a bad idea," said one student.

Dr. Bass has said that the administration will consider the students' feedback when making future decisions.

"We want to make sure that we're meeting the needs of the students," said the administrator.

The administration has said that it will continue to review its course offerings in light of student feedback.

"We're always looking for ways to improve," said the administrator.

The College of the Mainland recently held its annual Club Day in the Human Resources Building. The event was a chance for students to find out about the various clubs on campus and get involved in campus life.

Many clubs were represented, including the Student Activities Board, the American Association of University Women, the COM Outdoor Club, the COM Women's Soccer Team, the Poetry Club, and the Film Society. The clubs had set up booths, where they talked to students about their activities and how they could get involved.

The Student Activities Board was running a raffle, where students could win prizes like T-shirts, movie tickets, and gift cards. The American Association of University Women was also running a raffle, where students could win prizes like a book about women's rights and a gift card.

The COM Outdoor Club was running a raffle, where students could win prizes like a backpack and a water bottle. The COM Women's Soccer Team was running a raffle, where students could win prizes like a soccer ball and a water bottle.

The Poetry Club was running a raffle, where students could win prizes like a poetry book and a water bottle. The Film Society was running a raffle, where students could win prizes like a movie ticket and a water bottle.

The clubs were all looking for new members, so students were encouraged to stop by and find out more.

COM's Opferman writes German WWII book

By Sherry Byman

If you want to read Texas College's historian about the women involved in World War II, look no further than Sherry Byman's book "The Women We Left Behind," which is being published by the University of North Texas Press.

Byman, who teaches at Texas College, said she chose to write about the women who served during World War II because she felt that their story was not being told.

"I think there's a misconception that World War II was just about the men," Byman said. "But women played an important role in the war, whether it was working in factories or providing support for the troops."

Byman's book focuses on the experiences of women in the United States and Germany during World War II, and how their roles differed. She said that while American women were primarily employed in factories and sanitation work, German women were also involved in the war effort, albeit in different ways.

"In Germany, women were also involved in the war effort, but their roles were more diverse," Byman said. "Some were involved in the medical field, while others were involved in the food industry or even supported the SS."

COM's Opferman writes German WWII book

by BRADY HEYAN

Wiz and "The Wiz," a young black male from Corpus Christi, had read Opferman's book "Germany's Laptop," a German book about World War II, and was interested in the book. Opferman's book, which was recently published, has been well received by critics and readers alike.

The book is a fascinating exploration of the war in Europe, with Opferman providing a unique perspective as a German historian. The book covers a wide range of topics, from the early days of the war to the final days of the Third Reich.

Feed back on the book has been overwhelmingly positive, with many readers praising Opferman's writing style and his ability to bring the war to life.

"Opferman's book is a must-read for anyone interested in World War II," said one reviewer. "His writing is engaging and his research is meticulous."

Community colleges' enrollment up

Two Texas community colleges have reported a significant increase in enrollment this fall, according to recent reports.

Elmendorf College, located in El Paso, has seen a 20% increase in enrollment, while the El Dorado College, located in San Antonio, has seen a 15% increase.

Both colleges have attributed the increase to a variety of factors, including increased awareness of the benefits of higher education and a growing number of adults looking to further their education.

Elmendorf College has also implemented several new programs and initiatives to attract students, including a new online program and a series of workshops designed to help students succeed.

The increase in enrollment is good news for the community colleges, as it indicates a growing interest in higher education and a desire to continue their education.

February key month for blacks

February is a key month for blacks, as it is the month of the civil rights movement.

This year, February is particularly significant, as it marks the 50th anniversary of the Montgomery Bus Boycott.

The boycott, which lasted from December 1955 to December 1956, was a pivotal event in the civil rights movement and a turning point in American history.

The boycott began when Rosa Parks, a black woman, refused to give up her seat on a bus to a white passenger.

The boycott quickly gained momentum, with thousands of blacks joining in and refusing to ride the buses. The boycott ended in December 1956, when the Supreme Court ruled that segregation on buses was unconstitutional.

The boycott was a major victory for the civil rights movement and helped to bring about a new era of civil rights progress in the United States.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Malcolm X

Leaders' messages same, methods differ

BY ROBERT JONES

Making waves

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. made Mark Diney's March "Thoughts on the work of the Negro during the past ten years" a powerful call to action. The speech was a clarion call for action, a cry for change, and a challenge to the nation to address the pressing social issues of the day.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Malcolm X, although each had a different approach to achieving the goals of the Civil Rights movement, both shared a vision of a just and equal society. Their messages were similar in content, but their methods differed in execution.

In his "Letter from Birmingham Jail," Dr. King outlined his belief in nonviolent resistance and the use of peaceful protests to bring attention to the injustices faced by African Americans. He argued that direct action was necessary to overcome the resistance of the powerful forces of segregation and discrimination.

Malcolm X, on the other hand, took a more confrontational approach. He advocated for a more aggressive form of activism, which included armed self-defense and the use of violence to defend against racial oppression.

Both leaders were tireless in their pursuit of justice and equality. Their messages were aimed at唤醒ing the conscience of the nation and促使ing change in the system.

Surf fishing for powerful fish provides true high

By COBBY PETERS

Surf fishing for powerful fish provides true high

The rush of the wave, the sound of their fin slicing through the water, and the excitement of the moment when you feel the fish fight back is what makes surf fishing for powerful fish such a rewarding experience. The power and strength of the fish being line for line with the angler can create an adrenaline-pumping experience that is truly exhilarating.

The species of fish that one can expect to catch while surf fishing for powerful fish vary depending on the location and the time of year. In the Gulf of Mexico, for example, anglers can expect to catch species such as tarpon, redfish, and bluefish. In the Pacific Northwest, sockeye salmon and halibut are common catches.

A key factor in surf fishing for powerful fish is the type of tackle used. For species such as tarpon and redfish, anglers typically use heavy-duty spinning or casting gear with large, powerful reels. For species like halibut, a more substantial setup with large tackle and a strong leader is necessary.

When setting up for surf fishing, anglers often use a wading or walking approach, depending on the location. In many areas, the use of a surfboard to help navigate the waves is also common.

In the end, surf fishing for powerful fish is all about the challenge and the excitement of the fight. Whether you're a seasoned angler or just starting out, the rush of the wave and the thrill of the catch is what makes it a rewarding and memorable experience.
Surf fishing for powerful fish provides true high

By BRADY HOOG

The sounds of the sea, the smell of salt water, the feel of the sun on your face...it's the perfect day for surf fishing. It's not that one catches big fish, but to a surf fisherman, the sounds of summer are whatever the fisherman may hook. The few hundred pounds a month may catch by surf aren't the same as, say, trout or flounder, but the fish caught by surf are better yet, reeling in a big fish. One never has to look further for the reward of the day than to a surf shore.

Tanning beds popular, but dangers exist

For the last year, I've been up a lot for early morning practice sessions. The last year, I've been getting more into fitness as well, and I've been using the tanning bed regularly. It's been a big help for me in getting my skin tone up.

Companies are concerned about the potential for skin damage and are taking steps to educate employees. The American Academy of Dermatology recommends limiting tanning bed use to no more than three times a week and avoiding use during the first two weeks of the bed's use.

The Closest Thing To Space On Earth

LSD: round trip journey of the mind
by KIM MITCHELL

It was a sight right out of fantasy, three human-like faces peering out of the dome of a space station. The three were from the Space Station Foundation, a nonprofit organization that sends people to space for research and education. The station is located in the Canadian desert and is powered by the sun.

The staff of Job ads, 11 the jobs of the future included two student researchers and one professional from the Foundation. The student researchers were studying the effects of long-term exposure to space, while the professional was discussing the future of space exploration.

During the tour, the staff visited the Living Area, the Laboratory, and the Launcher. The Living Area is where the crew lives and works, while the Laboratory is where experiments are conducted. The Launcher is where the crew is launched into space.

The tour also included a visit to the International Space Station, which is currently orbiting the Earth. The staff had the opportunity to see the station up close and learn about its operation.

The staff of Job ads are looking forward to future space missions and the opportunities they will bring. "This has been an incredible experience," said one of the staff members. "We are excited to see what the future holds for space exploration."

Hunters' dollars boost small-town economies

According to an article in The Hill Country News, "Texas has a wider range of opportunities for students than ever before. It is not just the traditional four-year colleges or trade schools to learn their profession. These people are earning a living at what they love and they do it with great skill."

The Hill Country News is a local newspaper that covers the news in the Texas Hill Country.

The article states that many people in Texas who make their livelihoods by hunting are doing so because they can make a good living from the sport. The article also states that some hunters are willing to spend money on hunting dogs and other things related to the sport to ensure they can make a good living.

Plagiarism plagues colleges, universities

By Annette Zanné

The problem of plagiarism is a serious one that threatens the validity of many research papers and term papers written by college students. At one time, plagiarism was considered an academic offense, but today it is an increasingly common occurrence. According to a recent study, 40% of college students admit to using someone else's work as their own.

One of the main reasons for plagiarism is the lack of adequate supervision and guidance provided by professors. Many professors do not provide clear guidelines on how to properly cite sources and avoid plagiarism.

Another reason for plagiarism is the pressure to perform well in college. Many students feel the pressure to get good grades and may resort to plagiarism to achieve this goal.

Hunters' dollars boost small-town economies

Around the area this past weekend, visions of the going concern in the small town of Texas were not a reality. The Texas Panhandle, home to the world's largest fishing and hunting center, is also the home of the small town of Texas. With the support of the local chamber of commerce, the town of Texas used a combination of advertising and local tourism to attract visitors.

The annual Hunting and Fishing Festival is just one of the many events that draw visitors to the area. The festival includes a variety of activities, including a fishing derby, a hunting contest, and a variety of food and drink vendors. The festival is a great opportunity for visitors to experience the local culture and enjoy the outdoors.

The town of Texas is also home to a number of other attractions, including the Texas Wildlife Center, the Texas State University, and the Texas State Botanical Garden. The wildlife center is a great place to learn about the local wildlife and to see a variety of animals up close. The university is home to a number of excellent programs, including the College of Business and the College of Law. The Botanical Garden is a beautiful place to take a stroll and to enjoy the natural beauty of the area.

The town of Texas is a great place to visit and to enjoy the outdoors. With its friendly atmosphere and its many attractions, the town is a perfect destination for visitors who are looking to escape the hustle and bustle of the city.

The history of the town of Texas is also an interesting one. The town was founded in the late 1800s, and it has a rich history that is reflected in its architecture and its many landmarks. The town has a number of historic buildings, including the Texas State Capitol, the State House, and the Texas State Library.

In conclusion, the town of Texas is a wonderful place to visit and to enjoy the outdoors. With its friendly atmosphere and its many attractions, the town is a perfect destination for visitors who are looking to escape the hustle and bustle of the city.
